INFORMATIONAL INTERVIEWS
The Lloyd & Helen Ament Astmann ’69 Career Center

Informational interviews are an excellent way to research potential career fields, network with individuals in your field, gain insight into the day-to-day functions of a job and learn more about the skills one needs to succeed in a particular career path. Informational interviews are also helpful in identifying your skills and interests and becoming more comfortable in an interview setting.

LOCATING PEOPLE TO INTERVIEW
- Family members and friends
- Professional organizations or associations
- College connections (Alumni Association, Career Center, faculty, classmates, parents of your friends or roommate)
- Linkedin and other professional social media groups
- Yellow pages or on-line directories
- Local companies, organizations and your regional Chamber of Commerce
- Career fairs and events
- Cold calls

PREPARING FOR THE INTERVIEW
- Update your Linkedin profile
- Bring a copy of your resume to the interview or mail it in advance as a FYI
- Dress professionally, just as you would if you were interviewing for a job with this organization
- Research the organization or the field (libraries, on-line resources, Linkedin company pages, directories, annual reports, company web site, etc.)
- Develop a list of potential questions (see sample questions below)

DURING THE INTERVIEW
- Be punctual. Arrive on time
- Call if you are going to be late or need to cancel or reschedule
- Turn off your cell phone
- Be enthusiastic and professional at all times
- Offer a firm hand shake, make good eye contact, etc
- Don’t turn an informational interview into a job interview
- Ask your prepared questions, but also be flexible and let the person being interviewed take the lead if appropriate
- Take notes
- Ask for advice or suggestions about entering or working in the field
- If appropriate ask for the names of other contacts in the field
- If you wish, ask for feedback or suggestions on your resume

FOLLOWING THE INTERVIEW
- Send a thank you note or email
- Consider staying in contact
